Melissa thx

I agree with one START on weekends. We can start Sunday the 2nd so whoever is here will give you an update.

DEP Enforcement may push us all out. I will talk with Mike this week.

Enjoy phones next week, ha.

Hi Dennis,

I think that maybe we should start only have one START on weekends and two only if we have sampling or actual removal of tanks/excavation occurring on-site? Raj from ERT is supposed to have the SOP for the sampling procedure to Ft.Meade and Jack early next week and possibly coming to WV to do a field test of the method either at Poca Blending Facility during a transfer of wastewater and/or product. If there are no transfers scheduled maybe the field test can be done at the Freedom site if no large demolition is occurring.

I know START has asked me of an anticipated timeframe and I really don't have one, but I said the way it looks to anticipate staffing until end of March.

We are still having the 9am EPA calls with Philly, then 10am operation meetings during the week and 10:30 meeting on Wednesday.

I did ask for where the facility in Alabama is that got the delivery of MCHM/PPH on Monday

2/17, but haven't heard. So if you could ask Mike Dorsey for him to inquire about it. The email was supposed to come from the lawyer for Freedom Don Bludorn. Once you find that out, I told Art Smith I would send him the facility name because right now he just has the update that 5,180 gallons went somewhere in Alabama as an FYI.

Pretty much nothing else has changed except the sump dug on the back wall of the secondary containment that they are now pumping from instead of the front and the first shipment of waste water will go from Poca to DSI in Hurricane on Monday 2/24.

FYI, the WVDEP Enforcement people are holding everything close and we really aren't getting much shared information. When Mike or Rusty hears something they try to let us know, but at times they aren't even being told what enforcement is doing.

Other than that I will plan on coming back down on Sunday, March 2; unless I hear otherwise.

Thanks,

Melissa
